

“Casa de Internet” for Latin America and the Caribbean

The Latin American and Caribbean Internet Address Registry is a not-for-profit organization that seeks to ensure the stability of the Internet in our region and promote its expansion as a tool for social, cultural and productive development on the basis of a neutral, open, transparent and participatory management system.

<http://lacnic.net>

The Latin American Advanced Networks Cooperation (Red de Cooperación Latino Americana de Redes Avanzadas) has developed and operates the only advanced telecommunications internet network for research, innovation and education in Latin America.

<http://www.redclara.net>

ICANN was formed in 1998. It is a not-for-profit public-benefit corporation with participants from all over the world dedicated to keeping the Internet secure, stable and interoperable. ICANN coordinates the unique identifiers (names and numbers) across the world. Through its coordination role of the Internet's naming system, it has an important impact on the expansion and evolution of the Internet.

<http://www.icann.org/>

LAC-IX is the Latin American and Caribbean Internet Exchange Point Operators Association, an entity created in 2011 to strengthen regional interconnection.

<http://lac-ix.org/index>

The “Casa de Internet” for Latin America and the Caribbean is the main hub of Internet entities in the region intended to enable synergies, support development and provide more and better services to our community while involving a growing number of stakeholders.

The Internet Society (Regional office for Latin America and the Caribbean) is an international not-for-profit organization founded in 1992 to ensure the development, evolution and open use of the Internet for the benefit of all individuals around the world.

<http://internetsociety.org>

LACTLD is a not-for-profit organization that brings together country code top-level domain administrators in Latin America and the Caribbean, as well as administrators in other regions with links on this continent, and coordinates policies and strategies for the development of domain names at the regional level.

<http://lactld.org>

AHC IET is the Latin American Association of Research Centres and Telecommunications Companies (Asociación Iberoamericana de Centros de Investigación y Empresas de Telecomunicaciones), a private not-for-profit organization created in 1982 and comprising over 50 telecommunication operators in Latin America, including public, private, multi-national and local companies. This diversity ensures significant representativeness for the entire industry.

<http://www.ahciet.net>

The Latin America and Caribbean Federation for Internet and Electronic Commerce (Federación Latinoamericana y del Caribe de Internet y el Comercio Electrónico) is an organization promoting the development of ICTs and E-commerce in the region.

<http://www.ecomlac.org>

Visit us!

Rambla República de México 6125 CP 11400

Montevideo, Uruguay

Phone: (+598) 2604 22 22

